

Faculty Position - Clinical Assistant Professor of Small Animal Integrative Medicine

The Department of Comparative, Diagnostic, and Population Medicine in the College of Veterinary Medicine is seeking applications for a full-time clinical assistant professor in small animal Integrative Medicine for a clinical service that focuses on mobility (rehabilitation and sports medicine) and regenerative medicine (hyperbaric oxygen therapy and orthobiologics). The successful candidate will work in the Integrative Medicine Service of the Small Animal Hospital, which features a substantial caseload and an indoor pool, underwater treadmills, a hyperbaric oxygen chamber, and a dedicated integrative medicine treatment area. The successful candidate will join other ACVSMR diplomate faculty (two FT, one PT), one specialty intern, two ACVSMR residents, and four service technicians (including two with rehabilitation certifications). The position will have a clinical commitment consistent with other responsibilities but will include a significant clinical assignment, including clinical teaching of professional veterinary students and house officers. Opportunities for clinically relevant research, service in the field, and work with other species (large animal, exotic) are provided.

Qualifications

Requirements include a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine (DVM) or equivalent degree and having completed residency training in canine sports medicine and rehabilitation. Candidates should be able to start no later than November 1, 2022 and have qualifications consistent with the rank of Clinical Assistant Professor.

Application Instructions:

All applicants must apply online through Careers at UF (Job Number: 522395) in order to be considered for the position. For full consideration, applicants must submit the following items as a PDF file: (1) a letter outlining your clinical/diagnostic service, teaching, and research experiences as well as your professional goals, (2) a current curriculum vitae, and (3) the names and contact information for three professional references who are able to speak to all aspects of your abilities as they relate to the responsibilities of this position. Email inquiries to emiscioscia@ufl.edu are welcome. Applicant review will commence as applications are received. Applications must be submitted by 11:55 p.m. (EDT) of the posting end date of July 12, 2022.

Final candidates will be required to provide an official transcript to the hiring department upon hire. A transcript will not be considered "official" if a designation of "Issued to Student" is visible. Degrees earned from an education institution outside of the United States are required to be evaluated by a professional credentialing service provider approved by the National Association of Credential Evaluation Services (NACES), which can be found at <http://www.naces.org/>.
